2017 Schedule M1AR Instructions

You must complete a separate Schedule M1AR for each installment gain you are reporting.

Who should complete this schedule?

You may be required to complete this schedule to report one of the following:

- installment sale income from the sale of S corporation stock, a partnership interest, or the assets of an S corporation or partnership.
- income from an S corporation, partnership, or trust that is reporting income from any installment sale of S corporation stock, a partnership interest, or the assets of an S corporation or partnership.

Complete Schedule M1AR if you are reporting income from either situation above and all of the following are also true:

- The installment sale was executed after December 31, 2016.
- You were a nonresident or become a nonresident while recognizing income from the installment sale gains.
- The S corporation or partnership had a Minnesota filing requirement, or you were a Minnesota resident, during the year that the sale occurred.

Full-year residents are not required to complete this schedule. You are not required to complete this schedule to report the installment sale of property not connected to the sale of an S corporation or partnership.

What information will I need to complete this schedule?

If you completed an installment sale and reported, or should have reported, it on federal Form 6252 with your federal individual income tax return, you will need to include information from Form 6252 on this form.

If you own an interest in an S corporation, partnership, or trust that completed an installment sale, you will need information reported to you on the applicable State informational report from the entity. This information is reported on:

- Schedule KS for S corporation shareholders
- Schedule KPI for partners in partnerships
- Schedule KF for trust beneficiaries

What if installment gains from the sale are undetermined in the year of sale?

Complete and file Schedule M1AR even if the income from an installment sale is undetermined in the sale. This includes sales with no stated maximum selling price, such as a contingent payment sale. See IRS Publication 537, Installment Sales, for more information.

How do I allocate non-business income?

Partnership Interests

If you are declaring non-business income from the sale of a partnership interest, use one of the following ratios.

- If the assets of the partnership consist of more than 50% tangible property at the time of sale, the ratio is equal to the original cost of tangible property in Minnesota divided by the original cost of all tangible property of the partnership.
- If the assets of the partnership consist of more than 50% intangible property at the time of sale, use the partnership's sales factor for the full tax period immediately before the tax period during which the partnership interest was sold.

Single Member Limited Liability Companies (LLC)

If you are declaring non-business income from the sale of an interest in a company that is disregarded for federal income tax purposes, allocate it to Minnesota as if the company did not exist and the assets of the company are personally owned by the sole member.

Goodwill and Non-Compete Covenants

If you are declaring non-business income from the sale of goodwill or a covenant not to compete, allocate it to Minnesota using the entity's prior year sales factor. This includes federal allocations of purchase price to goodwill following the sale of an S corporation or single member LLC.

Other Income

Non-business income that is not assignable to Minnesota under the methods in this section is assigned to the taxpayer's state of domicile.

Multiple Methods

If multiple methods of non-business allocation are required, include additional information with your return detailing how you applied each percentage to the separate parts of the purchase price and how the percentages result in the amount listed on line 5.

Enter the amount as a decimal carried to five decimal places.

If you are declaring non-business income from an installment sale, use the appropriate method detailed in the instructions of this schedule.
