Department of Revenue releases video illustrating the growing use of electronic filing in Minnesota

What: A web video released today by the Minnesota Department of Revenue highlights the growing trend in electronic filing compared to just six years ago. The video is available for download and use by all media outlets.

Using photos from 2006 and video from 2012, this clip represents the reduction of mail room activity over the past six years due to an increase in the use of electronic filing by Minnesota taxpayers. In each set, the first image is a photo from 2006 with the second image being shot from the same angle in 2012.

Quote: “Although a shrinking percentage of Minnesotans still file their income tax returns using paper forms, the days of seeing many semi-trucks filled with tax returns and an overflowing mailroom at the Department of Revenue are a thing of the past. This year we expect over 80% of tax returns to be filed electronically, compared to 66% in 2006 and 18% in 2003. With electronic filing, errors are significantly reduced and taxpayers receive their refund faster compared to paper filing,” said Myron Frans, Commissioner of Revenue.

“However, the volume of both paper and electronic returns is the highest around the April 17 tax filing deadline. With the influx of last-minute returns, turnaround time for refunds may be delayed, and I remind taxpayers to be patient as we process their returns.”
