Idea for a Gross Operating Revenues Tax: An Alternative to Property Tax for Utility, Pipeline, and Railroad Operating Property

This document describes several sets of lookback summary information related to analyzing the Idea for a Gross Operating Revenues Tax.

The department analyzed the 2019 through 2024 assessment years under the current property tax system and estimated what the tax would be under the gross operating revenues tax. In addition to the gross operating revenues tax, the department analyzed three-year weighted average gross operating revenues tax, net operating income tax, and three-year weighted average net operating income tax. The analysis shows less variability in three-year weighted gross operating revenues tax and three-year weighted average net operating income tax when compared to the estimated market values under the current system.

Background

In January 2024, the Minnesota Department of Revenue introduced a preliminary idea to remove utility, pipeline, and railroad operating property from property tax and replace it with a gross operating revenues tax.

Currently, the department does not have intentions of proposing legislation on this idea. The department cannot make changes to the current system alone. The legislature needs to approve changes to the current system and set rates.

This document is meant to be responsive to the comments, concerns, and questions requesting the financial impact of this idea. It provides an estimate of the potential impact of this idea, under a set of assumptions. The analysis may change depending on the rate selected, availability of data, any refinements to the idea, and further analysis on other tax impacts, including fiscal disparities and many other factors.

The department is not advocating for a rate, but we can provide an estimate of the financial impact of this idea by using hypothetical rates. Therefore, the hypothetical rates in this analysis were selected to remain revenue neutral at a statewide level for the 2023 assessment year. The revenue neutral assumption is at the aggregate level. There are still shifts within individual jurisdictions due to the complexities of the current system. State assessed apportioned market values include county, city, township, and parcel level data. We are not able to identify school district or special taxing districts for these parcels. The hypothetical rates do not include inflation adjustments.

The Minnesota Department of Revenue analyzed data for the 2019 to 2024 assessment years (for taxes payable 2020 to 2025) with the main purpose to compare what an alternative tax would have produced to the estimated taxes under the current. The analysis included:

1. System Gross Operating Revenues x Allocation Factor x Rate = Tax Estimate
2. 3-year Weighted Average System Gross Operating Revenues x Allocation Factor x Rate = Tax Estimate
3. System Net Operating Income x Allocation Factor x Rate = Tax Estimate
4. 3-year Weighted Average System Net Operating Income x Allocation Factor x Rate = Tax Estimate

We collectively refer to these as alternative tax scenarios. In some instances, we abbreviate gross operating revenues as GOR or Gross Op Rev, net operating income as NOI, and 3-year weighted average as 3-yr wt. When we refer to estimated market values, we mean the estimated market value of the taxable operating property in Minnesota, excluding railroad operating buildings. This is also referred to as Minnesota Apportionable Value in other documents.

In each of these data sets:

- Hypothetical rates were used. See Appendix A for the hypothetical rates. There is no inflation adjustment applied to the rates.
- The tax estimate was reduced by the amount of energy production taxes assessed under Minnesota Statutes, sections 272.029 and 272.0295. Solar and wind energy systems are subject to a production tax and are not part of the current utility and pipeline property tax assessments.
- The tax estimate was reduced by a factor of property located within rural areas compared to all of the property for cooperatives that pay a per-member tax under Minnesota Statutes, section 273.41.
- 3-year weighted average is calculated as most recent year weighted at 40%, middle year x 35%, and furthest year x 25%.
- For companies that do not provide us with income information, or are not required to do so, we assumed no change in tax. Income information was available for over half the companies for each data set.
- The estimated market values of railroad operating structures were removed, assuming the operating structures would change from state assessment to local assessment.
- The tax estimates under the current property tax system and under each alternative tax scenarios are for all taxing jurisdictions, including the state general levy.
- The analysis used here followed the steps outlined in the Summary Information Addendum published on August 1, 2024.
- The effective tax rate in the 2024 assessment year (payable 2025) analysis used the effective tax rate for taxes payable in 2024 as the payable 2025 tax rates are not yet available.

Comparing Variability of the Data Sets

The analysis indicated that the three-year weighted average of gross operating revenues and three-year weighted average of net operating income exhibited less variability than the estimated market values under the current system. Property taxes under the current system exhibited the least amount of variability.

The data indicates that, in the 2023 and 2024 assessment years, companies are contributing a smaller proportion of property taxes, relative to their gross operating revenues and net operating income compared to the assessment years from 2019 to 2022.

Our analysis demonstrated that the alternative tax scenarios would have resulted in a larger tax amount than the current property tax system in the 2023 and 2024 assessment years. The exception was the 2024 assessment year using the gross operating revenues tax. All other tax scenarios showed an increase in the 2023 and 2024 assessment years. The analysis also showed the current property tax system would have resulted in a larger amount of tax than any of the alternative tax scenarios in 2019 through 2022. The estimated taxes under the current system for the 2023 assessment year decreased, even though estimated market values of the operating property increased. The estimated property taxes for the 2024 assessment year increased over the estimated taxes payable for the 2023 assessment year, but still not as high as the 2022 assessment year level. This means other factors besides estimated market values of the operating property caused the decrease, such as levies set by local jurisdictions or market values of other properties within each jurisdiction.

Summary Information Lookback

Like the Summary Information we posted on August 1, 2024, we used hypothetical rates in our estimated tax calculations. The hypothetical rates are included in Appendix A.

Please note, the summary information and hypothetical rates for the 2023 assessment year dated August 1, 2024 do not match the 2023 assessment year in this document. This is because the tax rates for payable in 2024 were available for the analysis in this document and not available in the analysis dated August 1, 2024.

The analysis shows estimated 3-year weighted average gross operating revenues tax has the least amount of variability of the alternative scenarios, followed by 3-year average net operating income. Each alternative tax scenario has higher variability than estimated taxes paid under the current system. Figures 1 and 2 compare each alternative tax scenario to property tax calculated under the current system.

See Appendix B for a comparison of each alternative tax scenario to property taxes, separately. Appendix C provides the summary information by county and by city/township for each data set for 2019 through 2024 assessment years.

Coefficient of Variation

The coefficient of variation tells us how far apart each data set is around its average, specifically, the dispersion of each data set relative to its average. A lower coefficient indicates that the data is less variable and more tightly clustered around the average.

Table 1 shows the estimate for 3-year weighted average net operating income tax has a lower variability than the estimate for 3-year weighted average gross operating revenues tax. Property taxes under the current system have the lowest variability.

The operating property of the five largest companies in Minnesota, based on Minnesota Apportionable Market Value, account for around 60% of the estimated taxes for all utility, pipeline, and railroad operating property.

As mentioned above, the 2023 and 2024 assessment years tax estimates for each alternative tax scenario exceed the current estimated taxes for the same year. The exception being the 2024 assessment year tax estimate for gross operating revenues. The estimate for all other years remains below the current level. This is due to the lack of correlation between gross operating revenues and net operating income with estimated market value and taxes.

When comparing the relationship between market value and net operating income or market value and gross operating revenues, we observe a strong correlation – indicating that changes in one typically align closely with changes in the other. In contrast, there is minimal correlation between net operating income or gross operating revenues and taxes. This means that an increase in net operating income or gross operating revenues does not necessarily lead to a corresponding increase in taxes.

This lack of correlation is why we observe an increase in taxes for the 2023 and 2024 assessment years under the alternative tax scenarios, while a decrease occurs in the other years. Figure 4 illustrates the correlation coefficients for these relationships.

Over the 2019 to 2024 assessment years, taxes generally make up a smaller ratio of gross operating revenues or of net operating income in more recent years. Figures 5 and 6 below chart the ratio of taxes to gross operating revenues and taxes to net operating income. We included forecasted trend lines.

Figure 5 provides the ratio of taxes to gross operating revenues using the y-axis on the right-hand side of the chart. The gross operating revenues, aggregate for all companies with available data, uses the y-axis on the left-hand side of the chart. Figure 6 provides the ratio of taxes to net operating income using the right-hand side of the chart and the net operating income, aggregate for all companies with available data, using the y-axis on the left-hand side of the chart. The forecasted trend line extends out one period.

Historical Data

We also analyzed several data points under the current system. Table 2 presents the department's estimated market value assessed for utility, pipeline, and railroad companies in assessment years 2019 to 2024. This table also includes the year-over-year growth, or annual percent changes, in estimated market values over the same period.

Table 3 outlines the estimated property taxes assessed based on the estimated market values from Table 2, along with the year-over-year growth. It is important to note that property taxes are paid in the year after the assessment year.

Estimated market values are one part of the calculation to determine taxes. Property Tax in Minnesota is based, in part, on a property's estimated market value. Each property owner pays their share of the local jurisdiction's levy based on the property's estimated market value, and tax capacity rate, among other factors. We compared the variability of estimated market values to the estimated taxes. Both tables include the coefficient of variation for each set of data for all data points within the set of data.

Since one dataset pertains to taxes and the other estimated market values, we use the coefficient of variation for comparison, as taxes are much lower than the market values.

In this analysis, the coefficient of variation is smaller for the taxes data set, indicated that taxes are relatively less variable than estimated market values.

Table 4 compares the estimated market values, estimated taxes paid, and effective tax rate.

The estimated market values and estimated taxes show significant variation across the 123 companies included in the analysis. A substantial portion of our analysis focused on the year-over-year percent change, or annual percent change, by company. Generally, we observed that companies with larger estimated market values tend to pay a smaller amount in taxes relative to both their estimated market values and gross operating revenues, compared to smaller companies.

Current System

As part of the current system, the department's valuation of a company's operating property is appealable administratively to the department or to Minnesota Tax Court, and in some cases, Federal Court.

Administrative Appeals

The administrative appeals process in Minnesota Statutes, section 273.372, subdivision 4 was amended in the 2017 legislative special session effective starting in assessment year 2018. Table 5 shows the amount of estimated market companies appeal administratively to the department each year and the results of the administrative appeal settlements.

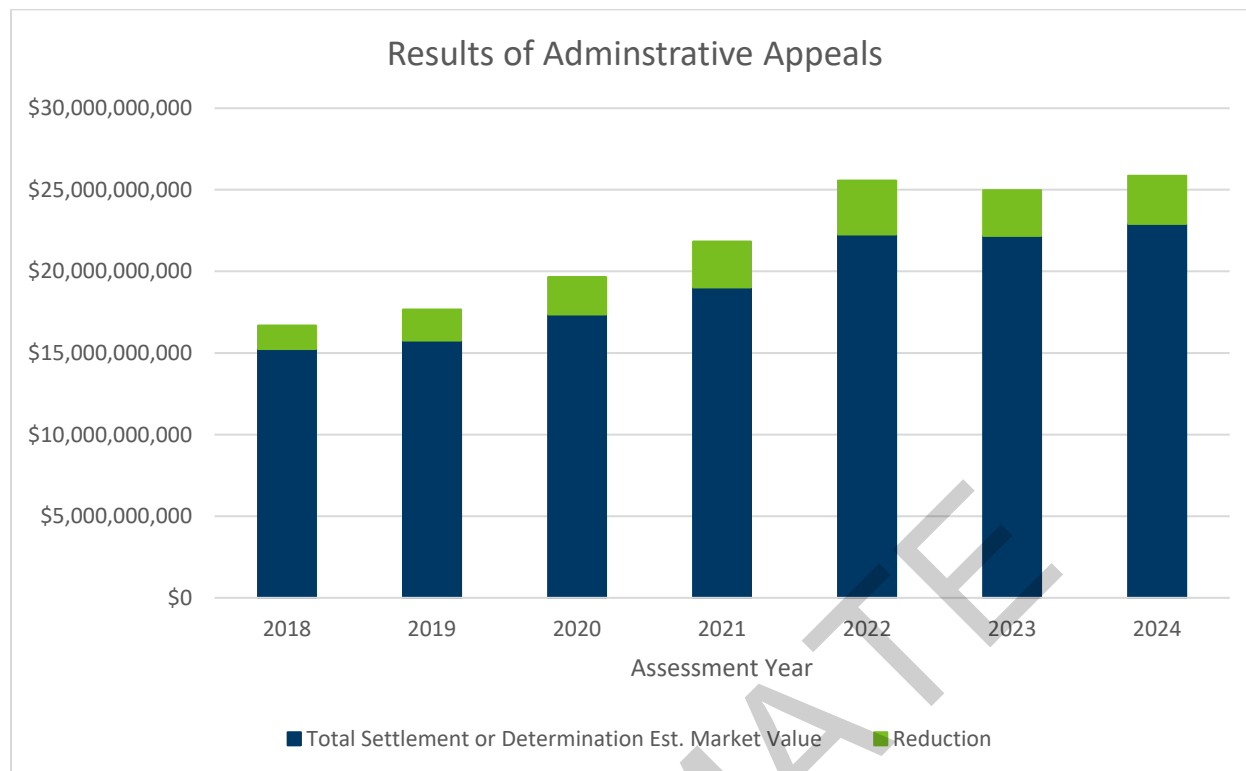

Table 5: Administrative Appeal Results

Assessment Year	Estimated Market Value Appealed Administratively (Billions)	Total Settlement or Determination Est. Market Value (Billions)	Reduction (Billions)	Percent Difference
2018	$15.240	$13.803	-$1.438	-9.40%
2019	$15.763	$13.867	-$1.896	-12.00%
2020	$17.357	$15.064	-$2.293	-13.20%
2021	$19.011	$16.192	-$2.818	-14.80%

2024	$22.910	$19.966	-$2.944	-12.85%

During the administrative appeals process, on aggregate, companies initially proposed to settle the appeals for a reduction of 25% to 35% for the 2018 through 2024 assessment years.

Figure 7 shows a comparison of the estimated market values after administrative appeal and the reduction, added together to show the estimated market values that were appealed administratively.

For the 2024 assessment year, the department valued the operating property of 122 companies. Of the 122 companies, 35 companies (28.7%) requested an administrative appeal. Figure 8 shows the number of companies that requested an administrative appeal and the number that did not.

Figure 8: Number of Valuations, with Number of Administrative Appeals and No Administrative Appeals

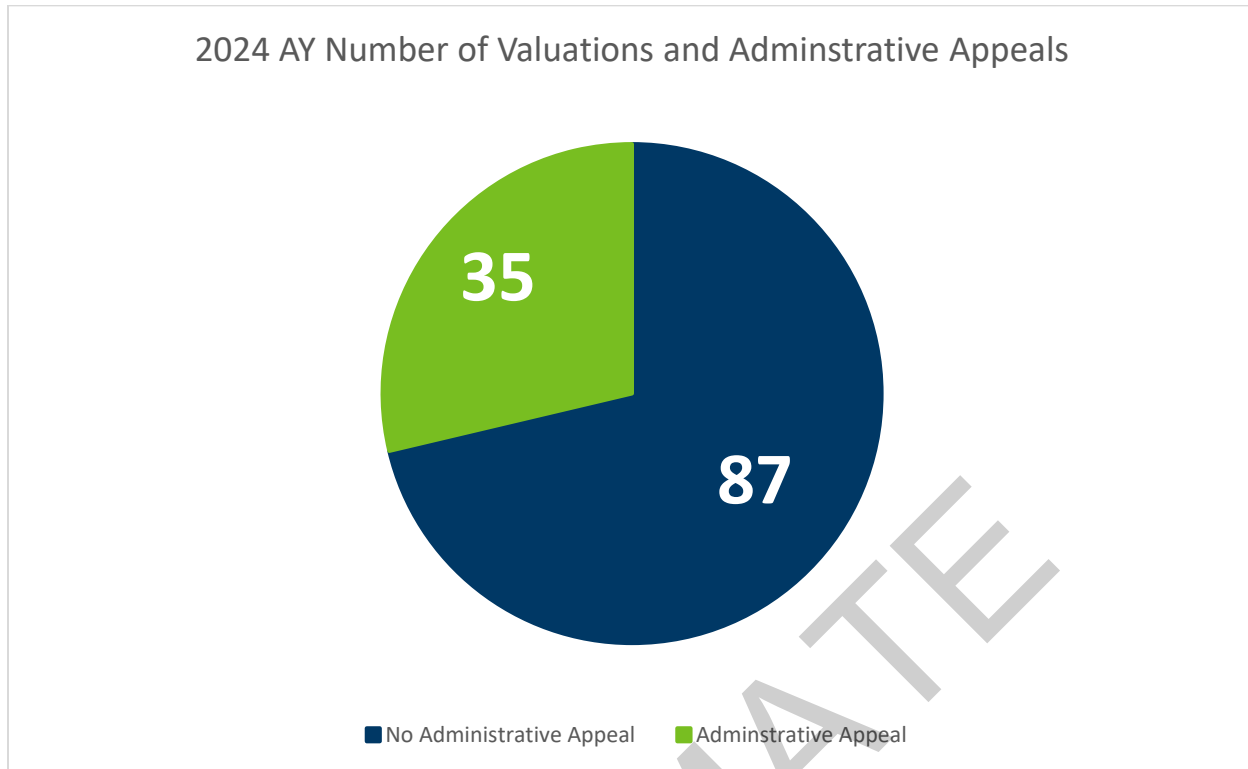

Figure 9 contrasts with Figure 8 in that it compares the amount of estimated market value appealed, rather than the number of appeals. It is important to note that these figures include the estimated market value of railroad operating property structures, unlike the other figures throughout this summary information lookback.

During the 2024 assessment year, companies administratively appealed a total of $22.91 billion estimated market value, before any settlement agreements or determinations. The amount of estimated market value not administratively appealed was $3.03 billion. While only 28.7% of companies requested an administrative appeal, the administrative appeals represented 88% of the total estimated market value assessed by the department for the 2024 assessment year.

Figure 9: Amount of Estimated Market Value Appealed Compared to Estimated Market Value Not Appealed, Administratively

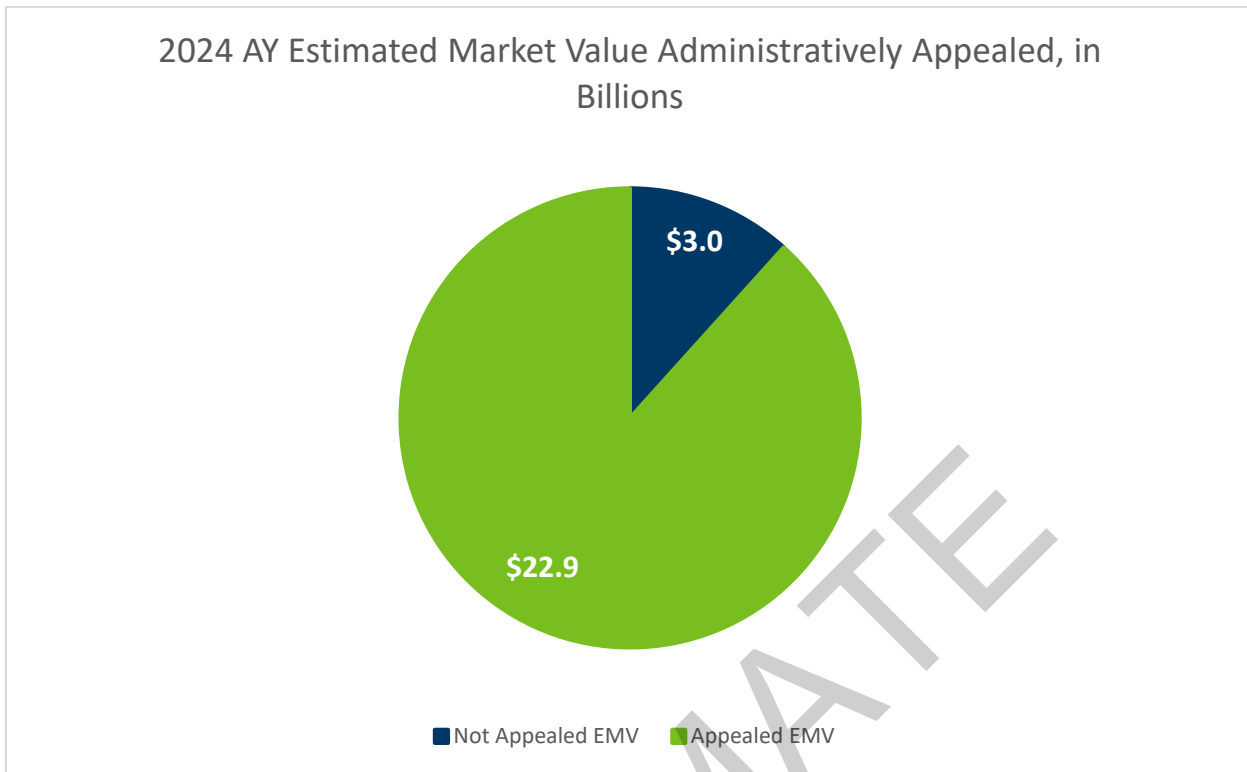

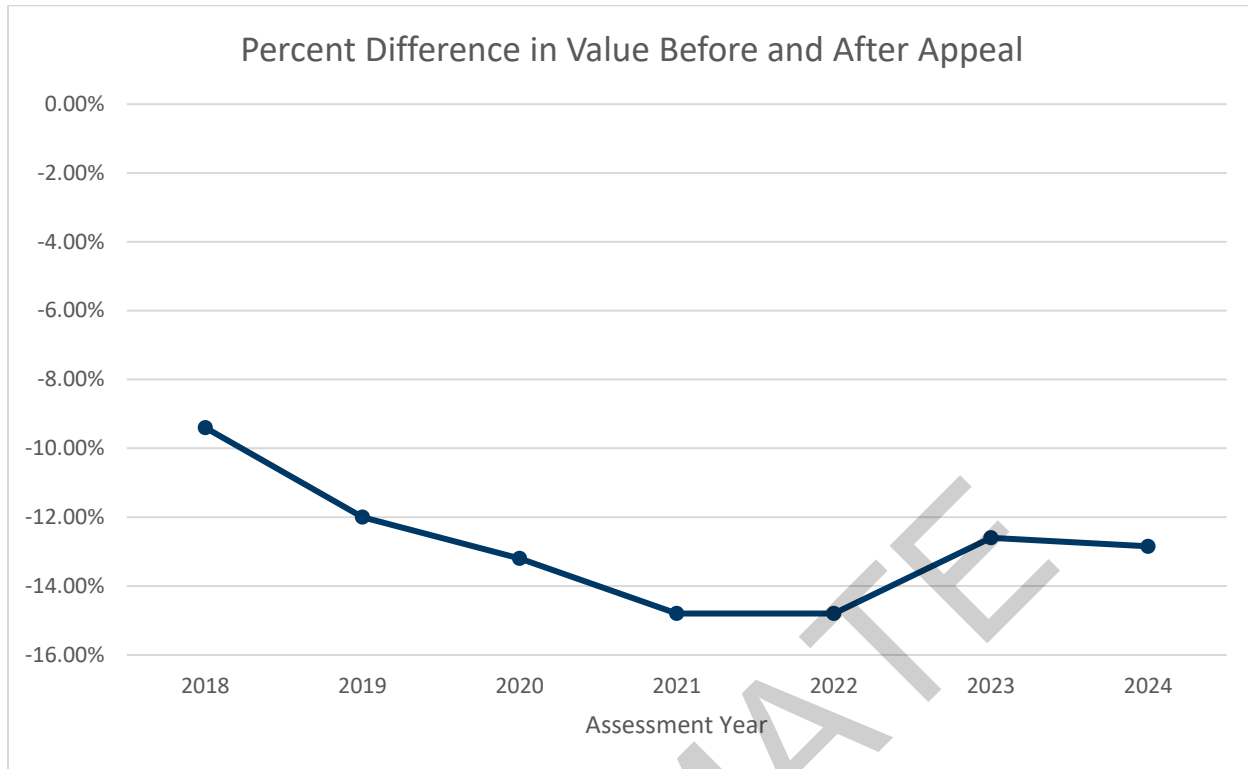

Figure 10 charts the percent difference in the estimated market values before and after administrative appeals for assessment years 2018 through 2024.

Tax Court

There have been 111 Tax Court Petitions filed against the department's valuations of utility, pipeline, and railroad operating property for the 2008 through 2023 assessment years. There are 10 open cases through the 2023 assessment year. The closed cases were resolved as follows:

- Settled: 67
- Dismissed: 19
- Tax Court Decision: 15

The average reduction in estimated market value for the 101 closed cases was 10.42%. Settled cases averaged a reduction of 12.36% and Tax Court reductions averaged 14.97%.

The total litigated estimated market value for the closed cases was $31,313,757,449, reduced to $27,038,073,837, which is a reduction of 13.65%.

A company can appeal the department's valuation after the administrative appeals process, if a settlement was not reached, or can file in tax court without requesting an administrative appeal.

The Tax Court appeal period is still open for some of the 2024 assessment year valuations.

Summary

In analyzing the estimated taxes under alternative tax scenarios, the data shows less variability in the three-year weighted gross operating revenues tax and three-year weighted average net operating income tax when compared to the estimated market values under the current system.

The analysis also shows a larger reduction trend in the estimated market values as part of the administrative appeals process.
